CITY IS QUIET TODAY

Officials Offered Sympathy and Support by Substantial Class

Gov. Deneen Takes Vigorous Action and Offers Number of Rewards for Law Violators.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18.—Public indignation at the crimes of the rioters crystallized today in a joint meeting of the chamber of commerce and the Springfield Business Men's association.
A meeting was held this morning to denounce the act of the rioters, to assure public officials of sympathy and support of the substantial class in a prosecution of the offenders and to commend Governor Deneen for his vigorous conduct.

Springfield is quiet today. During the night there were several outbreaks. Sentinels and soldiers in different parts of the city were fired upon from ambush. None of the citizens who fired at the soldiers were arrested. More arrests were made today and this afternoon the grand jury met to indict the rioters.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18.—Following the addition of two victims to the death list, sporadic outbreaks of lawlessness in various parts of the city and increased symptoms generally that the mob spirit still rules Springfield, Governor Deneen last night issued six proclamations offering rewards aggregating $1,200 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of the riot victims. The death list now numbers seven, but since one death was due indirectly to the disturbances, no official notice has been taken of it.
The governor's proclamation, identical in each case with the exception of the name of the victim, follows:

"Whereas, I am officially informed that on the 15th day of August, 1908, William Donnigan was assaulted and lynched at the corner of Spring and Edwards streets in the city of Springfield, Sangamon county, and died from the effects of such assault and lynching, on Sunday morning, August 16, and,

"Whereas, Every effort has been made to apprehend the murderers of the said William H. Donnigan, who are still at large;

"Now, therefore, I, Charles S. Deneen, governor of the state of Illinois,
do hereby proclaim and offer a reward of $200 for the apprehension and arrest of the said murderers and their delivery into the hands of the sheriff of Sangamon county, Illinois.

"Provided, however, that this reward shall be payable only on the conviction of the murderer or murderers
of said William H. Donnigan.

"In witness whereof, I, Charles S.
Deneen, do hereunto set my hand and cause to be affixed the great seal of state, this 17th day of August, A. D., 1908.

"CHARLES S. DENEEN, Governor."

"By the governor, James A. Rose,
secretary of state."

Governor Deneen also issued an address to the citizens of Springfield, as follows:

"A special grand jury was called by Hon. James A. Creighton, to convene Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock, for the purpose of conducting an investigation into the crimes which occurred here Friday, Saturday and Sunday last.

"All evidence relating to these crimes should be presented to the grand jury at once and I urge upon all good citizens to present such evidence as they may have, or information which they may possess or acquire, to the Hon. Frank Hatch, state attorney of Sangamon county, or to General Edward C. Young, in charge of the military forces here regarding any crimes which have been committed during that time.

"It is the duty of the citizens so to do, and in view of the extraordinary crimes which have occurred in the city of Springfield during the time mentioned, every good citizen should

MAKES DARING RESCUE.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Mr. Masane Hanihara, second secretary of the Japanese embassy and a social favorite of the diplomatic corps, is so severely injured from the result of his daring rescue of an American woman from a runaway horse that he may suffer consequences for the remainder of his life. The Japanese diplomat was battered and bruised and had his foot so badly crushed by the horse's hoof that it will be months before it is healed. The rescue occurred some days ago, but owing to Mr. Hanihara's special request to his friends nothing was made public about it at the time.

FIGHTING BOB

RETIRED FROM NAVY TODAY
AFTER SERVICE OF HALF CENTURY.

Is the Only Living American Who Has Commanded a Fleet of Battleships in War.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., Aug. 18.—
"Fighting Bob," otherwise known as Admiral Robley D. Evans, U. S. N., the only living American who has commanded a fleet of battleships in war, was retired today from the navy
after nearly half a century's active service.

Except for a lame leg, which forced him to resign his command of the Pacific fleet, Admiral Evans looks as well as he ever did. Today was the admiral's 62d birthday anniversary.

"By the governor, James A. Rose,
secretary of state."

Governor Deneen also issued an ad-

Public Entertainment on Lavish
Scale and Display of Fire Works Occurs Tonight.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 18.—James Schoolcraft Sherman was formally notified
today of his nomination as Republican candidate for vice president. The ceremony of notification took place at 12:30 at the Sherman residence, Senator Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan, heading the committee and delivering the address of notification, in response to which Congressman Sherman made his formal speech of acceptance.

The city had lavishly decorated for Sherman day and thousands of people from neighboring cities crowded into Utica.

The notification took place on a platform erected on the lawn fronting Sherman's house. Besides the notification committee Chairman Hitchcock and other notables were present.

In his address, Senator Burrows praised Mr. Sherman and said that if circumstances should make him President his training would insure wise administration. Mr. Burrows predicted a Republican victory at the polls and said the people would thus answer Bryan's question, "Shall the people rule?"

Congressman Sherman replied to the address accepting the nomination and speeches were also made by Secretary of State Root and President Stryker of Hamilton county.

A lavish public entertainment which will end with a great display of fireworks has been arranged for tonight.

RECEIVED THREATENING LETTER

MEHMET ALI BEY

Washington, Aug. 18.—As a result of threatening letters received from New York, Mehmet Ali Bey, formerly Turkish Minister to the United States, whose recall has just been announced,
has summoned the police to guard the legation. Callers were questioned before they were allowed to ring the bell. The Minister is preparing immediate departure, but will not disclose where he is going.

Prom statements made at the legation it appears that the first threatening letter reached there simultaneously with the official announcement from Turkey of the Minister's recall. The letter, written on red paper in black ink, and signed "The Avengers of the Nation," is presumed to come from a band of Turks in New York.

PROPRIETOR OF "BELL TREE"
BLIND TIGER KILLED IN A QUARREL.

Had Forced Bystander on Knees,
Making Him Say His Prayers
When Brother Interfered.

Borden Springs, Ala., Aug. 18.—Wm
Smith, proprietor of the notorious "Bell Tree" blind tiger and all-around desperado and bully, was shot and killed by Wm Chandler.

Chandler gave himself up to the Cleburn county officers and was taken to jail at Hefflin.

Smith and Will Chandler engaged in an altercation and the desperado got the drop on Chandler, forcing the latter to go on his knees, to say his prayers, saying as soon as they were completed he would shoot him dead.

There were many bystanders but none had the hardihood to interfere with Smith's amusement until Dave Chandler, a brother of the intended victim, came up and struck Smith in the back of the head with a stone. This

KILLING EXPECTED

ACCORDING TO ARMY OFFICER
WHO IS STATIONED AT FORT HAMILTON.

Orgies Occurred Which Disgusted the Officers and Resulted in Expulsion
of Mrs. Harris and Annis.

New York, Aug. 18.—"The killing of Wm. L. Annis as Captain Peter C.
Hains was expected by every army officer at Fort Hamilton," said one at that command today. "And the worst of it is that at any time two other tragedies of the same sort may occur

as the result of orgies which have disgusted every decent officer here and of which one feature was the expulsion of Mrs. Hains and W. E. Annis from the fort after Captain Hains had returned from the Philippines. If not at the inquest tomorrow night, it is almost certain that at the trial Lieut.
Annis and Mrs. Hains, and M. J.
Rowan, who has been employed there,
will tell of their having a short time ago, prevented Captain Hains from killing his wife and of threats of the soldier to kill Annis on sight."

JUDGE HARMON PRESENT

Republicans are Dragging Temperance Question
Into Fight

Editor J. H. Newton, of This City, Re-elected President of the Association.

Columbus, O., Aug. 18.—It was a shirt-sleeve conference that the editors of the Democratic papers in Ohio held with Judson Harmon and James E. Campbell yesterday upon the subject of ways and means for smiting
the common enemy in this campaign.

The conference of over 80 Democratic editors, was summoned by Chairman W. L. Finley of the State Executive committee, for the purpose named, and it proved to be a success far beyond expectations. As is usual at meetings of a political nature these days the temperance issue came up,
and was handled in rather an open
and free fashion, many editors relating the conditions in their territory and telling of the efforts of the opposition to manipulate both sides.

N. R. Webster of Paulding county, a strong temperance man, created a stir by making the declaration that a certain Republican state official and a member of the organization of that party in Paulding had been charged with coming to Columbus to make a deal with the Anti-Saloon League, whereby no election was to be called on the local option question until after the November election. This accusation was backed up by representatives of other counties, who alleged that the Republican workers were using similar tactics in order to hold both the liberal and temperance elements in line until the November crisis was passed.

The discussion evolved the general sentiment that the temperance question was not the dominant one in this campaign, although the Republicans had seized it to cover other shortcomings. This idea was expressed by Chairman Finley upon introducing
Judge Harmon in the description,
"That he is so big and broad a man
that no issue of inferior magnitude may attach to him. His character and reputation constitute a sufficient answer to any question that Governor Tarriss or any other Republican may ask of him. He is not identified with any class or interest and represents only the Democratic party."

This utterance was loudly applauded, showing the feeling that swayed
the editors. Speeches by Editors J.
H. Newton of Newark, Vallee Harold of Portsmouth, James Deldrick of Canton, James R. Alexander of Zanesville, George F. Burba of Dayton, J.
E. Hummel of Wilmington, and Adam Bridge of Franklin, indicated that the fight should be made for the principles of Bryan and the Denver convention and on the mistakes of Taft and the malfeasance of the state officials now under fire.

Former Governor Campbell, who repeated his prediction that Bryan would carry Ohio, declared that the veteran soldiers would not forget Taft, "the man who uncovered the skeleton of Grant's life." He asserted that if Bryan had made that speech
the Republican press of the country would be aflame with indignation, and that he would have been denounced as a ghoul and a vampire.

Judge Harmon's address was upon general lines, but he made the point that this was the first time he had ever been a candidate before the people. When he was named for judge

The Business of President Making

Method of Running a National Campaign and an Estimate of What It Costs—Wide Scope of the Party Chairman's Duties—How the Money Is Spent.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

ELECTING a president of the United States is a serious proposition, with many side lights. You might call it a serio-comic curtain raiser for the big show that takes four years. The campaign runs about four months.

Of course president making begins a year or more before the quadrennial election, but the real thing starts with the close of the second national convention. This usually means the close of the Democratic convention, which has a habit of being held a few weeks later than the Republican gathering. Then we know positively who's who in the running—two presidential candidates and two vice presidential candidates, one set of whom is sure to be elected. But we can't tell the real job of president making—the active campaign—until the first of August, and from that time until the November election there's something doing in American politics.

Two men run the campaign, and they are the nominees. They are the national chairmen. These officials are supposed to be chosen by a vote of the national committee of each party, composed of one member from each state and territory. But in reality the presidential nominee of each party dictates to the committee in this matter. The nominee chooses the man who, according to his belief, will boss the campaign in a manner calculated to do the most good for the nominee. Then Mr. Chairman takes the reins and runs the band wagon himself.

There is one big and bewildering bunch of work for the party chairman, with a few spot lights of glory thrown on the screen here and there and the probability of many cuffs and kicks. Party chairmen work for love, as a rule, though now and then one of them gets an office out of it he lands his man in the White House.

The first thing on the programme is the opening of headquarters by each party. The headquarters offices constitute the party capital for the campaign. From headquarters the chairman and his assistants throw out life lines to every state in an effort to save the nation.

And what a stupendous job is the saving of the nation every four years! Of course each party does the saving. Republicans and Democrats alike work like fury for three or four months, but all the fury and all the sound signify something. They signify that the people of the great republic are proud of their country and deeply concerned in its salvation.

Millions to Run Campaigns.

It costs a lump of cash to save this country every four years. Somebody has estimated that about $5,000,000 will be spent in the present campaign between the Democrats and the Republicans. Very likely, as heretofore for several campaigns, the bulk of the five millions will be Republican money, but you never can tell. There is this year a new law prohibiting contributions from contributing to the campaign funds. The money must come from individuals.

How much are you contributing?

The national party treasurer is almost as important as the chairman. He might more fitly be termed the collector, for it is he who must fill the coffers of his party for campaign expenses. He must devise plans for raising money, go begging for money, importune friends and strangers for money, persuade money, pump money, demand money, cry out in his anguish for money, money, money.

This country is a great deal bigger and stronger than it was in 1860, but or proof copy, favoring the platform and ticket of the party for which they stand. This material goes forward in copious quantities. In some instances the campaign management pays for its insertion by ordering so many thousand copies of the paper. But, paid or free, it costs money to edit and deliver the matter to the press.

Then there is the speakers' bureau in connection with headquarters, with branch speakers' bureaus at state committee headquarters. Hundreds of spellbinders permeate the atmosphere with oratory. For the most part the speakers invade the doubtful states, with a trend toward the weak spots. Their oratory, Republican or Democratic, is calculated to win votes for their respective candidates. Comparatively few of the campaign orators get paid for their work. Practically all receive expense money, and this eats a mighty hole into the fund. Many of the orators are distinguished senators and congressmen, who do not eat at the free lunch counters and sleep in day coaches. They come high, even for expense accounts only, but we must have 'em. What would a campaign be without a burst of eloquence every so often? Americans demand the campaign speech above all other forms of free shows.

Republican Chairman Frank Harris Hinchcock and Democratic Chairman Norman E. Mack at Chicago have their hands checked full of reins, for it is a multiplicity of horses they must drive on the big home run for Washington. They must know whether the Aie ward in St. Louis is properly organized, with the right side of Taft and Sherman or Bryan and Kern banner strung across the street from the cornice of Sluskey's shoe shop to the gable end of Schweitzer's beer garden. They must know if the campaign club at Crossroads Corners is organized and doing good work. They must keep a sharp lookout along the whole line to see if the enthusiasm is hot enough and make sure that the shouting is sufficiently loud to drown the other fellows' voices. In fact, the amount of detail information which these party bosses must acquire and the mass of political wires they must pull are enough to stagger ordinary humanity.

Where the Money Goes.

But campaign dollars are not dropped into every highway and byway. There is a studied method in their spending. The money goes into the doubtful states. Presidents be it remembered, are elected by state votes, not by popular vote. Under our system of state electoral votes it is quite possible for a candidate to receive a majority of the popular vote throughout the country and yet be badly defeated in the race for the presidency.

Therefore it behooves the campaign managers to pour money into the so called doubtful states. It appears that the Democrats this year regard several of the middle western, far western and northern states as doubtful, figuring that they can be carried for the Democracy by vigorous campaigning. The relocation of the Republican national headquarters in Chicago after offices had been rented in New York is taken to mean that the Republicans also regard some of these same states as doubtful and propose to carry on lively campaigns therein.

One of the first and most expensive things to be done by each party manager is to take a voting census or poll of the doubtful states. If you live in one of these states you may expect very shortly to be visited by a suave gentleman, who will ask you what party ticket you are going to vote. Then you may expect in a few days to receive a visit from another suave gentleman, who poses the same question. One is working for the Democratic national committee, the other for the Republican national committee. When the poll is finished the results are put on record at national headquarters, so that each chairman may see just what electoral district, county or city is "weak" from his standpoint. Into the weak sections hurry and scurry the campaign dollars. To buy votes? Oh, dear, no! Let's not accuse anybody of that. As a matter of fact, there is much less of a real vote buying than some persons imagine.

Trained Writers Employed.

Campaign funds are expended in various ways perfectly legitimate. One large bunch of them goes for printing. In connection with national headquarters is a publicity or literary bureau. Trained writers work here turning out editorial matter and reportorial matter and pamphlet persuaders. Of pamphlets and leaflets and circulars tons and tons are printed, being shipped and distributed in the weak spots. Then there is the newspaper publicity end of the bureau. The national chairman has a list of newspapers which are glad to get free reading matter, either in plate

HAVE YOU BEAUTIFUL HAIR?

IF NOT, WHY NOT?

Perhaps you've read the short story that has been published of late in all the papers about Miss Tillie Root, of Webster, N. Y., who has such beautiful hair that none other in Webster can compare with it.

At one time Miss Root had faded, harsh and falling hair, but as she says herself, after using two bottles of Persiana Sage she now has the finest hair of hair in town.

Persiana Sage will make any woman's hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant, and it is such a delightful hair dressing, that once used it is always preferred.

Persiana Sage is the most invigorating anise hair restorer known to mankind and it is guaranteed, rigidly guaranteed, to cure dandruff in two weeks, to stop falling hair or itching scalp, or more, back.

It is a highly satisfactory dressing for summer use, because it drives away all disagreeable odors, and leaves the scalp cool and clean.

T. J. Evans, the druggist, sells it, and guarantees it. Price is only 50 cents for a large bottle. Ask T. J. Evans, Ward Hotel block, about it, or you can get it direct at the same price, express charges prepaid, from Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Henrietta Mehr has commenced action in the Probate court for divorce from John A. Mehr. They were married August 25, 1903, and have no children. She charges failure to provide for three years, habitual drunkenness and cruelty naming February, 1908, as one of the dates when her husband assaulted her. Smythe & Smythe.

When George W. Green got consent from his wife to sell their home at 545 West Main street and promised to divide the proceeds, $2,500, equally between them, and then failed to make good, he got in bad with his wife and now seeks a separation. She further states that in April, 1908, and numerous other dates, her husband choked and otherwise abused her. They were married in March, 1896, and have three children. She asks for a divorce and custody of the children. Smythe & Smythe.

MUCH INTEREST IS MANIFESTED BY TEACHERS

Lectures at Institute Are All of a High Standard—Notes of the Sessions.

The Monday afternoon session of the Teachers' Institute opened appropriately with prayer and song, which proved edifying to all.

The first lecture of the session was given by Superintendent Powell, who chose for his subject, "The Recitation." Mr. Powell showed the recitation means much. Clearly he showed the various objects of it. The teachers were delighted with this lecture.

Prof. Graves was next on the program with a most instructive lecture on "The Relation of Interest to Attention." This lecture abounded in psychological knowledge and highly instructed all who listened to it. Prof. Graves has a strong hold on the hearts and minds of our teachers.

TUESDAY.

The first session of the day pleasantly opened with the singing of familiar hymns in which all the teachers and instructors joined. To say the least, Licking county teachers are fine singers. This pleasing exercise was followed by an unusually interesting talk on "English Language" by Mrs. Thomsen of the Chicago university, to which the closest attention given.

Next came Superintendent Powell's truly great lecture about "Glaciers," illustrated by word pictures that made very clear to the minds of his audience this subject.

This afternoon lectures will be delivered by Mrs. Thomsen and Prof. Graves.

The election of County Reading Circle secretary will be held, and the result will be given in Wednesday's institute news.

Prof. T. A. Edwards, who formerly taught in Licking county, now of Berea college, Kentucky, visited the institute Monday to the pleasure of his many old time friends.

Supt. F. F. Orr, of the Jacksontown schools, was recently appointed school examiner.

NOTES.

The programs furnished by Mr. A. L. Norton are much appreciated by all the teachers.

Hon. O. C. Larason, a former highly esteemed teacher of this county, now Democratic candidate for clerk of the Ohio Supreme court, visited the institute Monday.

Supt. Powell is much appreciated by the teachers because of his thorough instruction.

Mr. G. H. Japp, who taught at Nashport for several years, will superintend the Homer school the coming year.

Supt. Powell will furnish stereopticon views in connection with his geography lectures. His topics will be interesting ones to the teachers. Fail not to hear them. His topics in geography for the week are: Glaciers, Congressional Library, Lakes, In and Around Washington City, Cruise of the American Fleet, Our American Possessions.

The Advocate is eagerly read by the teachers because of the institute news.

The thanks of all the teachers are due Mr. John Schrumm for kindly providing the best of lemonade.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Hoop of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Newark readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy every produced such convincing proof of merit.

M. B. Melick, 61 W. Church St., Newark, Ohio, says: "I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as I used them for kidney trouble and obtained great benefit. I had a constant dull aching across the small of my back which would change to sharp twinges whenever I stopped or overexerted myself in any way. I also had pains in my hips, sometimes so severe that I was forced to take to my bed. I tried liniments and used numerous remedies but obtained no relief until Doan's Kidney Pills were finally recommended to me and I procured a box at Crayton's drug store. After a short use I found them to be just the remedy my system required as they banished my troubles and I have had no return of them since." (From statement given November 5, 1904.)

CONFIRMATION PROOF.

On Nov. 26, 1907, Mr. Melick said: "I gladly confirm everything I said in my former testimonial for Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have not suffered from backache or rheumatism since they cured me. I am convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills deserve all the praise given them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Marble it was because it was "Kids' Day" at the ball yard, or maybe it was because Pres. Quinn sat in the press box and witnessed the game, or maybe there was some other reason, but at least the Molders gave the Night Riders another drubbing to the tune of 6 to 3 after Conover had held them close for four innings. He started off in whirlwind fashion and for three innings he held the locals without a hit, but then he began to weaken and finally made a beautiful aerial flight that lost him the game.

Besides being hit hard he was very wild and seven batsmen were presented with passes to the first stop. Kaler, for Newark pitched a clever game of ball and after the first inning he was in no danger, though he did make a balk in the fourth that let in a run. It was rather a peculiar affair and it raised a big discussion when Handiboe allowed Dooin to score from third and sent Horning from second to the sack just wadded by his captain.

Dooin started for the plate with the first winding up motion, and Francisco stood and watched him come. Kaler threw the ball to Williams and the runner was touched, but the umpire decided Kaler stopped in his swing and called a balk. Quinn backed him up in his judgment and said the run counted.

Kaler, with this exception pitched a classy game and seven of the Portsmouth sluggers breezed before his slants and fast balls. He used his head throughout the game, and six times he figured in plays that were fast, and Conover, who was said by Quinn to be a heavy hitter, struck out twice of his three times at bat. He was given good support by his team-mates in the hitting and fielding line and deserved to win his game.

The "Kids' Day" attracted a big swarm of the youngsters, and from the jump their voices were raised in rooting for the Molders. They certainly enjoyed every minute of the game, and even after the two runs came across in the first and another one in the fourth they didn't lose heart. In point of numbers the girls about equaled the boys and seemed to understand the game and appreciate the playing. So interested did the "kids" become that not one left his seat until the last man was down in the ninth.

Burke started things off with a corking single and scored it to second when Totman laid down a bunt. Nagle grounded out and then McClinton came up. He took a vicious swing at the ball and it dropped close to the centerfield fence, took a nasty bound and bounced over Burke and the author of the blow rounded the bases. Doyle then fanned.

In the fourth Portsmouth hung on to the score board, and the chances looked good for Newark. Conover looked good for Newark. Conover got at least one in, but after Locke's was on third from his swing, and Burke on second from a bunt and Doyle on first from a bunt, Williams came on with two down and was an easy out. The real heavy work started when Kaler pitched first through an error of Horning who juggled his hit. Pinkney then rapped out a double, but Kaler took things easy and only went to third on the blow. McClinton singled and both the runners counted, and then he stole the second bag. Abbott was walked and Locke singled, and as he was trying to reach second Francisco threw to center field and McClinton and Abbott scored. Gygil grounded out and then Smith lofted out to Burke, while Locke came home on a sacrifice. Wratten was walked but Williams stopped the procession by hitting out to Burke, who made a great running catch and got the ball just back of second base.

In the sixth things went along at a merry pace, and for both sides it was the proper thing to retire in order. When the next frame rolled around Abbott's three bagger down the first base line and Locke's sacrifice to deep center saw Doe cross the plate. Though Gygil singled and stole second, and Smith sacrificed him to third, Wratten grounded and Gygil didn't cross.

LAD BESTS PROFESSIONAL SWIMMER AT TRAVERS ISLAND.

WINNER OF CHAMPIONSHIP

WINNING THE T. J. O'CALLAGHAN JR. NEW DIVING CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Aug. 18.—Swimming championships in local circles for many a moon have been practically foregone conclusions before the contestants have ever dipped into the water, so far all other aquatic experts have been men like Daniels, the Goodwin brothers and Treibenbach lowered At Travers Island, however, the first evidence was seen that there is a rising generation that henceforth taken into consideration. Goodwin, who was deemed good enough to represent America in the recent Olympic games in London, had most convincing evidence taken in the form of a championship of the A. A. A. two competitive young men of self-propulsion through the

The winner of the event turned up in the person of J. H. Reilly of Townsend Harris High school, a lad only 17 years old, who was just starting to swim when Goodwin was already a champion. The latter, who has only just arrived from Europe and who had not much chance to train since the London games, may not have been up to the top notch of his form, but there is little doubt that the schoolboy would have beaten him at his best.

NEWARK PITCHERS ARE PURCHASED

MOORE AND KALER ARE SOLD TO COLUMBUS AND WERE TO TOLEDO.

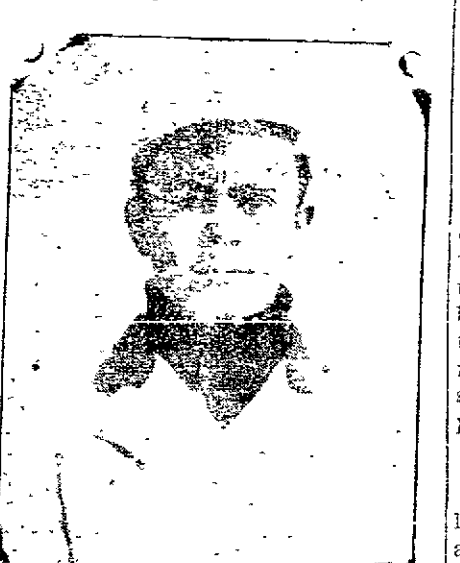

Will Finish the Season With Newark and Join A. A. Teams in the Spring of 1909.

Practically a clean sweep of the Molders' pitching staff was made by the purchase of two pitchers, Moore and Kaler, who will join the Toledo Mud Hens, and George Kaler will don the Columbus uniform.

"PEGGY" MOORE.

Who has been purchased by Columbus for all three winters of the Newark team were purchased by these clubs last night. Although Webb has been watched for a couple of years, yet Armour decided to give him a further tryout and get him seasoned a little more in a minor league. The seasoning process proceeded rapidly and "Lefty" has proved that Armour's judgment was not faulty. He has pitched good ball this year and has proved many times that he is capable of greater development in the baseball business. Moore and Kaler have also shown signs of being comers in every sense.

"LEFTY" WEBB.

Who has been purchased by Toledo of the word, and their work in the main has been above criticism. President Quinn, of the Ohio State League, has watched them in the interest of the Columbus Clumps, and he was favorably impressed with their heavy ability. Moore was showed that he can take care of himself in many tight places and Kaler has shown a remarkable aptitude for remembering ing the weakness of the opposing batters.

The purchase of these three men from the Newark team are the first recorded out of the Ohio State league which is rapidly nearing the end of its first season.

All three men will finish the season in Newark and will then join the A. A. teams at the beginning of the 1909 season. The fans of Newark while they will be sorry to hear of the going of these men who have worked hard for the Molders, will nevertheless be glad to know they are advancing in the baseball game.

PRESIDENT QUINN SEES BALL GAME

Visited Newark Yesterday and Took in the Game—Well Satisfied With League.

President Robert Quinn of the Ohio State League, made his first visit to Newark yesterday, and enjoyed the game from the press box. Mr. Quinn, while here in the interest of the Columbus team and also to keep a line on the homeless Portsmouth squad, made his visit one of pleasure, and thoroughly enjoyed his short stay here.

He readily answered all questions asked him by the newspaper men and also volunteered some information on his own hook that will be of interest to Newark fans. In his opinion, the Ohio State League for the season of 1909 is certain to be composed of eight clubs, and already he has received applications from several towns that want in the circuit.

All the clubs have gotten along in fairly good shape, and while the squad that is now representing Portsmouth has been rather unfortunate, yet they are drawing well now and the season is bound to close without loss to the club owners. Other leagues have not been so fortunate, but the low salary limit of the Ohio State League has proved a good thing, and many other details over the country will probably reduce their salary limit next year.

The baseball men all think well of the league, and the article of ball played has been as fast or faster than that played in some of the higher salaried leagues. Mr. Quinn is well satisfied with this, the first year of the league of which he has proved to be an excellent head.

"Many players are bound to be drafted from this league," he remarked, "the pitchers especially, for there are some high class ones twirling ball here. Other players are bound to move, too, at least that is my prediction."

Since the American league has decided to use the double umpire system next year, the president is sure that Empire Handiboe will have a horn for in his opinion he is one of the best in the league. He makes mistakes, but he is on the ground to see every play made and he will improve the same as a player will."

AUDITORIUM

Although the weather was bad, a large audience witnessed the performance at the Auditorium last evening, and everybody was well pleased. The moving pictures are exceedingly good. Miss Rice, harpist, vocalist and dancer, the vaudeville feature for the week, was heartily enjoyed. She is one of the cleverest performers in an act of her kind upon the American stage today. Newark is favored, as this performer plays only in the larger cities. There will be a complete change of pictures Thursday.

Dr. Mary Isham of Cincinnati, has been appointed house physician to the Ohio State Hospital for the Insane at Columbus, O.

KIDS' DAY

Drew Fair Sized Crowd to Ball Lot —Elks and Masons are Practicing Hard.

That batting rally was a dandy and Kaler felt a whole lot better when he saw the players coming to his support with their sticks. They gave him good support on the field and as a result he worked hard to win.

Francisco, who caught for Portsmouth yesterday, was a tryout with St. Paul for a few moments this spring. He can't hit but he looks good behind the bat.

Catcher Ellis who arrived yesterday afternoon from Zanesville worked out with Kaler for a while before the game and showed some form as a catcher. His pegging to bases shows that he also possesses an arm.

There was a big bunch of kids present, but not as many as would have been out had the day been advertised more. President Quinn's hearty favor of "Kids' Day" and thinks that a day for the kids three or four times a year is a good thing.

Pinkney, Wratten and McClinton all were strong on the field yesterday. Wratten had an error, but it was on a hard throw and he was at a disadvantage.

The balk called on Kaler was the first this year on a play of the kind. "I didn't pay much attention to him when I saw him starting towards the plate, for I thought he was trying to rattle me, and when he kept on coming it did surprise me some," Kaler said this morning. "Maybe I did make a balk."

McClinton's assist in the sixth inning when he caught Nagle at first, was a pretty bit of work, for the throw was a long one from deep short.

The Elks and Masons are working hard to get in the best of trim for their game, which will be played Friday. The contest is bound to be a good one, and should be well attended. Tickets for the game are on sale at the Hayes news stand. The game will be called promptly at 2:30 p.m.

An item appeared in the sporting section of the Advocate last night that Manager Cooperider of the Old Homestead team wants corrected. His team did not play the True Blues on Sunday afternoon, and were not defeated by the score of 15 to 10. Manager Cooperider also states that Bert Redman does not pitch with his team. Items sent to this department will have to be signed by the manager or captain of the teams or no attention will be paid to them.

HOLDUP MEN

Have Not Been Apprehended—Victim Thinks He Could Not Identify the Men.

The police have been unable to find the men that Russell McCarahan of Union Station, claimed assaulted him Saturday night at Idlewild park, and got $1 in money from him. According to the story he told the police, he was at the park with a woman named Cole, who claims her home is in Columbus, but that she came to Newark to take employment in a local hotel.

The couple went to the park and early in the evening, about 9 o'clock, they walked to the gate to get a car for Newark, when two men assaulted him and ransacked his pockets. The girl failed to show up at her place of employment Monday morning. McCarahan says he does not think he would know the men but the girl told the police that she thought she would be able to identify them if they were arrested.

Burgess, one of the strongest swimmers in England, had to give up his struggle in the English channel this morning after battling against storm and tides for 20 hours and 15 minutes. Captain Webb swam 22 1/2 miles, between Dover and Calais, in 21 hours and 15 minutes.

The pictures were good and the Humanfoties continue to evoke much interest.

NEW TYPE OF TORPEDO

Successful Test of Davis Projectile That Pierces Nets.

HAS ITS OWN MOTIVE POWER.

Former Objection as to Weight Overcome by Use of Vanadium—Bore Into Heavy Target and Has a Double Action—Can Travel 5,000 Feet.

Torpedo nets, such as are extensively used by Great Britain and which recently at Newport were demonstrated as protection to battleships from torpedo attack, were proved vulnerable the other day by a new type of torpedo, an invention of Lieutenant Commander Cleveland Davis. The trial test at Sheep Island, at the entrance of Quiney bay, was attended by Truman H. Newberry, acting secretary of the navy, and by Brigadier General Arthur Murray, chief of artillery, representing the army.

The successful demonstration showed the practicability of firing a projectile from a torpedo which serves as a gun after it makes a hole in the enemy's ship. This double action of the Davis torpedo characterizes it as an entirely new departure. Lieutenant Commander Davis, as soon as he was assured that his invention practically met his expectations, said to a New York Herald reporter at Quiney, Mass.: "This will enhance the value of submarine attack as conducted by torpedo boats, destroyers and submarine boats. It will require a radical change in the construction of battleships, making it necessary to armor their bottoms."

Former types of torpedoes when they strike the enemy's ship detonate on the exterior of the hull and by the escape of gases lose much of their effectiveness. The Davis torpedo is contrived to puncture the ship's bottom, carrying into the ship's vitals a projectile which detonates by a time fuse. Such an interior explosion directed in the engine room, the magazine or in the steering apparatus quickly places the ship out of action.

In exterior appearance the new torpedo resembles a short torpedo of the known type. It has its own motive power, operated by compressed air, capable of traveling 5,000 feet. Exact measurements of the torpedo have not been officially given out, but it is about sixteen feet long and eighteen inches at its greatest diameter. It has a second torpedo inside, which is fired through a tube when the initial explosion tears a hole in the ship's bottom. The first explosion starts a time fuse for the second detonation.

Commander Davis has made experiments for the last two years and attributes much of his success to a new element which has only recently become obtainable in commercial quantities. It was necessary to keep the torpedo gun light enough to float to its objective and at the same time of sufficient tensile strength to preserve the inner tube against the initial detonation. This new element is vanadium, which he uses in combination with chromium and nickel. This reduces the weight of the tube from half a ton to eighty pounds. The only available deposits of this new element are in Peru and are under American control. The steel for the torpedo and the shell were constructed by American companies.

Sheep Island, where Commander Davis has worked out his trials, is a deserted, low lying waste at the entrance of the bay, sharply eroded on the open ocean side, so that this natural breastwork afforded spectators protection and also complete view of the experiment. The torpedo was moored at a lighter and the target floated 120 feet to the south. The sun was bright over the bay, which was scarcely ruffled, making every detail plainly visible.

The target tank was said by its constructors to be stronger than a section of a battleship. It was of three-quarter inch iron, with three interior bulkheads. The metal was formerly a Standard Oil company tank at Chelsea and was a relic of the conflagration last April. This tank was fifteen feet high and ten feet in diameter. In the top a manhole was left open to relieve air pressure. Ballasted with forty tons of scrap iron, the target was submerged eleven and one-half feet.

When all was ready the assembled officers sought the protection of the sea worn bank, carrying a long rope with which to set the machine going. Secretary Newberry and Commander Davis, in tenders from the dispatch boat Dolphin, watched the experiment from the water.

"All ready, fire!" came the order. At the jerk of the rope there was violent bubbling at the lighter's side. On a straight line for the red tank the torpedo bored its way, revealing its course by a wake of bubbles. This path of busy bubbles looked mysterious as it neared the red tank, which swayed on the tide. Suddenly the tank was enveloped in a great splash, and the manhole cover bounced from the clattering iron. Then slowly the big tank sank down into the foamy water.

Secretary Newberry and the inventor quickly assured themselves of the successful outcome. They saw for the first time that a projectile could be exploded within an armored ship. The investigation was not completed until the fall of a nine foot tide showed a four foot hole bored through the steel walls and through all the bulkheads.

Red Noses and Cigarettes.
According to a French doctor it is a calamity to attribute all red noses to drink. He says the majority are caused by smoking cigarettes.

FEMININE BLUFFERS.

They Inevitably Are Found Out and Exposed to Ridicule.

"The liar sometimes gets away with the goods, but the bluffer seldom does," observed the slinky girl as she swung her heels on the hotel piazza steps.

"How's that?" we all asked.
"Did you notice that stunning girl who just went by? Every one thinks she is an heiress. She does nothing but talk about the people in the Four Hundred whom she knows and of how worn out she is after the winter's gaieties. Well, Jack Harding, who came up last night, says she works at Cashem's behind the necktie counter. 'She isn't the only bluffer in this hotel, either,' the slinky one went on."

THEY THINK SHE IS AN HEIRESS.

"Have you met the Titianesque beauty with that startling hair and the voice Caruso raves over?"

"Why, no one has been singing since I've been here," observed a listener.
"No, nor will they. I mean nor will she. You mark my words, that woman has no more voice than I have. But she does nothing but tell you about it. She has letters in her trunk (only she is always too tired to get them) from impresarios, telling her how great she is. She has sung at the houses of Mrs. Goldbrooks and Mrs. Millions, and they treated her like a sister. She— But ask her to sing something and watch her get out of it. She is under the doctor's orders, her contract will not allow her, etc.—bluff, pure bluff, nothing to it. She knows she needs something to make her attractive, so she invents it."

"There is one bluffer in this hotel who takes the cake, but she doesn't fool me," the eligible bachelor declared. "It's the sweet young mother who is a widow. How loving she is to that little golden haired child in public!"

"But how do you know it isn't genuine?"
"Because my room happens to be next to theirs," the bachelor answered dryly, "and I can hear her scold and yank the poor kid around. No, sree, that kind of bluff doesn't get your Uncle Billy."

"Have you made the acquaintance of the sweet young thing who never leaves mamma's wing?" resumed the slinky girl.

Some of us admitted we had been charmed by her youth and innocence. "The only trouble is that it is hard to make conversation with her," was the general opinion.

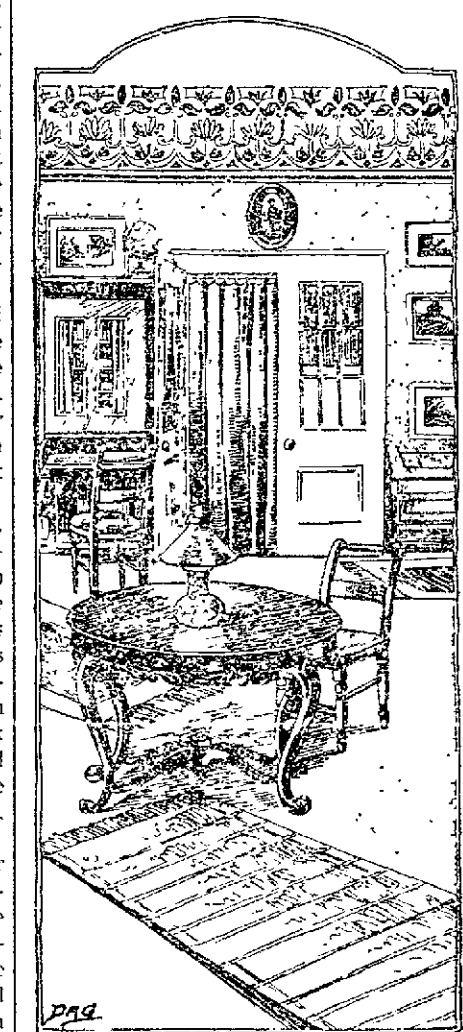

"Fudge!" said the slinky one.

TONY PASTOR'S START

Personal Reminiscences of the Noted Vaudeville Manager.

STAR AS TAMBOURINE PLAYER

Began His Career With a One Night Stand in His Father's Cellar—Gospel Meeting Brought Him Again Into Shadow of the Footlights.

Tony Pastor, the veteran actor and noted vaudeville manager, told a few years ago, on the thirty-fifth anniversary of his theatrical career, how he made his debut. He said:

I began business at a one night stand in the basement of our house. That was in 184—well, so far back I don't like to count. Father had laid in a good supply of coal and wood that year in the old house in Greenwich street, New York. He had paid a man to pile it up nice and trim so it looked pretty and so you could get at it handy-like from the furnace.

I had my idea even in those days about how to manage things. I was always managing things, or trying to. So I carted all the coal I could lift and shove and haul over to the back steps of the cellar. There I arranged it like a bicycle track, a sort of sounding board and a place for the feet of the audience—a raised seat, as it were.

Then the boys came and saw me play the tambourine. As a tambourine player as a kid I was a star, if I have to say it for myself. The boys appreciated this and made such a noise on the curtain calls that father heard something doing and came down and took the house by storm, so to speak.

It was an awful anticlimax. It's funny how fathers and straps can produce the most startling anticlimaxes. Yet it isn't funny except when you look at it in the perspective of thirty-five years of managementship and constant activity in the play business. For the time being it was very serious and looked as if my aspirations as an actor were ended all right.

Strange that a gospel meeting should be the means of bringing me into the shadow of the footlights again. Dad was that proud of my voice—I had a crackerjack of a voice as a kid, with which a steam calliope was not in the same catalogue—that he said:

"Kid, there's to be a meetin' in the old Hand-in-Hand hall tonight, and you'd better come along with me and see what's doin'."

So I went—and sang. And the fire got into me and never left. Father died about then. My finances were rather meager, so Mr. Nathan, who was one of the firm of Welsh, Delevan & Nathan, took me as an apprentice to learn the circus business.

There were no railroads over the mountains in those days. We had to cross in stagecoaches and didn't strike a railroad until we reached the old Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Cumberland, Md. Cincinnati was two weeks from New York then, and one had to hustle to get there that quick. Our first trip to Cincinnati was eventful, because the elephant came very near putting us all out of business. He got loose one day, and they closed the doors of the tent so he couldn't get out without some delay. It wasn't that he couldn't get out so much, I think, as that those on the outside of the tent felt that if they did that he would turn his attention to the things on the inside of the tent first before destroying Cincinnati.

Boylike, I climbed the tent and watched him from a pole hole. There he was, as calm as you please, a-bowling things right and left. He didn't make much noise, except once in awhile, when he made a special large haul with his trunk, he would trumpet loud enough to wake the dead.

Outside they had all the police of the town and the fire department, all trained on the tent, and the militia had been telegraphed for. Inside things began to grow more warm. Not content with so little noise, the elephant turned over cages and everything else except the tent poles. He seemed to know I was up there looking at him, and his remembrance of how I had fed him peanuts softened his heart.

"Dear boy," he said, "he will live to see May Irwin in 'Sister Mary.' It is enough."

That's why I'm here today—through that elephant's thoughtfulness.

I steered clear of Cincinnati after that. Oh, by the way, they caught the elephant somehow. I didn't wait to see how.

I am, you know, the father of big vaudeville. That sounds as if I had done something perhaps, but it isn't true. I haven't done anything; I've been simply the instrument. When I began (and I was a manager at eighteen) only men and boys went to variety shows. Our old house on the Bowery was like the shows of London. I knew that if the women would only come we could purify the stage, for where the women are, God bless 'em, their influence is felt. That sounds a little like a grand stand speech, doesn't it? Well, it isn't.

The women came, first to the "ladies' nights" and then more regularly. Finally they came to the matinees and to all the evening performances, and our variety shows grew purer in consequence. I have aimed at high vaudeville. I have been thirty-five years striving for it. I think I have won it. Certainly if this reception I'm having today is a pointer it has been a winner.

Thirty-five years ago today! Well, my patrons, here's to you, and thank's for your co-operation and your good wishes! Drink hearty, and tonight bring all your friends.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS.

Mrs. Humphry Ward's Letter to the London Times.

In glancing over Mrs. Humphry Ward's letter to the London Times the thoughtful American reader must be struck with two points: First, the gulf which separates the woman suffrage question in England and America, and, second, the evidently superficial knowledge that Mrs. Ward carried away with her with regard to the present status of the issue on this side of the Atlantic. On one point, however, Mrs. Ward is absolutely correct: The methods employed by the suffragettes have been a decided disadvantage to the movement among American women. By descending to Englishmen's vociferous street methods of claiming their rights they have placed themselves and the cause they represent in an illogical attitude. Women ever have urged that their admittance to the rights of citizenship must tend to improve politics, and those who stand for human dignity and higher aspirations must necessarily shrink from espousing a cause, however righteous, that must place them under a necessity of appearing to indorse lawlessness. That their course was advised, as stated, by great liberal leaders is no excuse for women of good judgment, and the same American women who want the vote not only as a matter of abstract right, but principally because of a much felt need in the equalization of working women's and children's opportunities, must deprecate as derogatory the turn given to the movement in Great Britain, even though it prove successful.

This much having been said, and to return to Mrs. Ward's letter, it is well to note the distinguished writer at ready enjoys municipal and educational franchise, and is recognized by her government as eligible and competent to sit on city, county and school boards. For all purposes of local work she is enfranchised. When she deals with the subject of woman suffrage in England she is therefore dealing with something totally different from that of woman suffrage as it stands today in America. The question before the English people is whether the last step in the ascent of women shall be taken. The question as it stands in most states of America is whether any step at all in the ascent of women is wise. Indeed, viewed in this light, Mrs. Ward's letter seems one long advocacy of municipal suffrage for women.

There is hardly a line in the entire letter but conveys the impression that women today have found their highest usefulness in educational and civic matters, a fact recognized in England by the privilege of municipal citizenship. This being granted, her view is that they should be satisfied and leave parliamentary suffrage—that is, control of national and international affairs—to men. This is the point reached by the discussion in England, but it is not that which it has reached here, and to confuse the two situations is likely not only to obscure the issue, but to lead to misunderstanding.

AN EVENING AT HOME.

A Few Jelly Games to While Away the Hours.

A funny game to arrange is to assign each man of the party to the task of writing a description of some lady's gown. The name of the person whose gown is to be described must be given, paper and pencils are passed for the purpose and about ten minutes allowed for the work.

Meanwhile the women can be working for another prize in a nonsense contest of a different sort. A very absurd but exciting one is to give each feminine competitor an empty pin paper which she is required to fill in a certain length of time. The holes for the pins will be already made.

A bowl of loose pins is placed on the table, around which the fair players gather, and each strives to get her paper filled first. The woman whose paper is full when the time limit is up, or who has filled more rows than any fellow worker, wins a pretty pin cushion. The gentleman whose description is considered best by three female judges appointed to pronounce upon the masculine attempts receives a prize. This might be a book containing portraits of famous beauties of the past in their quaint costumes.

What He Looks At.

Some men can take in all a girl wears. The average man sees if she be the kind he likes—or the other kind.

If he cannot go into details he can, however, see where to—

If her shoes are run down at the heels or any of the buttons are gone

Her gloves have holes in the tips and would be better for soapuds or wash line.

She looks "headboxy" or as if she had never heard of pressing.

She is spidy or slouchy or neat and trim.

Men may be impressionists as to colors and textures, they are not when it comes to nothing more than that bespeak show-offness.

Do not forget, girls, that it is by such little things that you are judged rather than by what you pay for your clothes or how well you carry them.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 18.—While playing tennis President Roosevelt was surrounded by a score of young men and women on horseback, wearing their sleeves white hands with red crosses.

The leader of the band then let the President know that he was their victim. The President quickly put his hand in his pocket and produced his contribution. Then he wished the riders good luck in the raid.

SON'S DUPLICITY BRINGS GRIEF TO AGED MOTHER

Former Newarkites Practice Frenzied Finance in Chicago and Trouble Results

Matthew Mister and Woman Companion Will Serve Sentence in House of Correction--- Duped Woman Will Visit Here.

The publication Monday exclusively in the Advocate of the adventures and misadventures of Matthew Mister, Mrs. Jennie T. Mister and Bessie Toy, alias Lillian Young, in Chicago and which resulted in the arrest of Mister and Bessie Toy, laid bare some family history in Newark which has not heretofore been exposed to the public.

Two of the principals in the case, Matthew Mister and Bessie Toy are former Newark people. Mister was once employed at the Warden Hotel as day clerk and Bessie Toy, whose right name is Mrs. Charles Rogers, once resided here for several years and came here from Mt. Vernon.

Five years ago in July, Bessie Toy of Mt. Vernon was married by Fr. Waterson to Charles Rogers, son of Mrs. Eliza Rogers of 67 Poplar avenue. They lived together for more than a year, in fact about three months after the birth of their little son, Kenneth. Then young Rogers left the city without a word to any one and has been back but once since. Even that one time he did not make his presence known but again left for parts unknown. He has since remained away from the city but has occasionally communicated with his mother through other Newark people who are unknown to the boy's mother.

A year ago last January, Mrs. Rogers left the city with Matthew Mister who was then a clerk at the Warden. Reports stated that they had gone to Pittsburgh and New York. They were in Pittsburgh awhile, but left the little boy Kenneth with his grand mother, Mrs. Rogers, of Poplar avenue.

Finally the lad's mother asked to take the child for a two weeks' trip with her. That was about a year ago and until a few weeks ago nothing was heard of the child or its mother. The grandmother knew that the child was better off away from its mother owing to her alleged misconduct and sought to locate them but without success.

In the meantime, Mister and the Mrs. Rogers were living together as man and wife, reports being circulated that they were married. After a time, Mister and the woman produced little Kenneth Rogers and told their friends and Mister's relatives that the lad was their son.

Mister's aged mother was one of those who was duped into believing that the child was Mister's and after a time she took the child to her own home in Kentucky.

The child's reference to "Grandma Rogers" first aroused Mrs. Mister's suspicions. She questioned Mister about the matter but he assured her that the child was his own and nothing more was thought of the matter until something the child said later, aroused the woman's suspicions and the son then confessed that the child was not his.

Mrs. Mister immediately commenced an investigation whereby she might locate Mrs. Rogers, the real grandmother, and return the child to her, knowing that it should not be in the possession of the Rogers woman.

A short time ago Mrs. Rogers, the grand mother, was located and the child returned to her. She immediately took steps to adopt the child and it is now legally her own.

So much for the duplicity of Mister and the woman with whom he was living.

They kept up their deceit, however, with reference to their marriage and Mister's companions continued to work him for his mother's money. They separated after a little but he made up again and resumed their former relations.

Mrs. Mister received a letter from her son's companion who was then in Chicago stating that she was ill in a hospital and had no money, and asked for a loan of fifty dollars. The letter was supposed to have been written by

"As the Twig is Bent the Tree's Inclined"

How is it with the young people of your household? Are they saving money? Have they learned to appreciate the value of the dollar? Are you endeavoring to instill into their minds correct ideas concerning thrift and economy? Are you seeking the opportunity to "bend the twig?" Would you listen to a plain suggestion? If so, here it is: Send the young folks to our bank with the first spare dollar that comes into their hands. The next dollar should be treated in like manner, and the practice so continued until a fixed habit of saving has been established. A goodly bank account will soon result; the young folks will get an inkling of the ways of business, and being thus "inclined," are likely to grow up into straight and thrifty manhood.
